DEVASTATING WINDS SWEEP THROUGH SOUTH

5 SOUTHERN STATES EAST OF MISSISSIPPI ARE SCOURGED

15 LIVES SNUFFED OUT, 100 INJURED AT RYE COVE, VA., SCHOOL

Atlanta, Ga., May 3—(UP)—The south today looked upon death and wreckage left in the wake of devastating winds which swept through sections of five southern states east of the Mississippi river, leaving a heavy toll in lives and property damage.

Only today did the full destructive extent of the winds of yesterday, which in some sections became roaring tornadoes, begin to be unfolded.

Sympathetic interest turned particularly toward the little consolidated school at Rye Cove, Va., where 15 young lives were snuffed out when the building was demolished by a tornado. More than 100 children were injured and seven were missing. Some of those who yet live will die, physicians said.

Another storm center was Woodville, Va., where a school boy was killed and a dozen other persons including teachers and several children were injured when extremely high winds razed a school house, two churches and four homes.

Oak, Ala., reported one death and several seriously injured by another wind of cyclonic proportions, and a youth was killed and his companion seriously injured by a falling tree uprooted by high winds at Lafayette, Ga.

Matt Hoefler, 55, was killed near Jacksonville, Fla., when a high wind destroyed his house.

The death list in Virginia, Tennessee, Georgia and Alabama stood at 20, while the injured were placed at upward of 150. Property damage was extensive.

The Rye Cove catastrophe came shortly before one o'clock when 125 students and teachers were in the two story frame building, of this number few, if any, escaped death or injury of some sort.

The eight room school was attended by children from a radius of ten miles around. The students ranged from kindergarten age to high school seniors. The building was struck with sudden and shattering force, collapsed in a twinkling as the roof was torn away.

The children were trapped in the wreckage, some being killed outright. Others were pinned helplessly under heavy timbers, unable to move. Their groans and screams rising above the storm were heart rending.

Alva Carter, high school teacher, and 14 children were killed. Probably six others will die, physicians said. Tots seven years old to high school seniors of 18 were among the dead.

The twister which practically wiped the little mountain settlement of Cherokee, Tenn., from the map with a resultant loss of two lives and 10 injured, apparently was the same general disturbance which wreaked such havoc at the Rye Cove school.

Mrs. Tilda Storey, 88, and an infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett P. Springer were killed, and five members of the Springer family were seriously injured.

WIDESPREAD DAMAGE IN SOUTH AND MIDWEST

(By United Press)

A dozen states in the south and midwest were suffering today from the effects of wind storms which caused more than a score of deaths and injuries to hundreds and widespread damage to buildings and crops.

The outstanding tragedy of the storms was at Rye Cove, Va., where 14 children and their teacher were killed. Of the more than 100 injured six were expected to die and seven were missing.

In the south the storm swept through Virginia, Tennessee, Georgia and Alabama.

Two prisoners were killed when cyclonic winds struck the jail at Columbus, O.

Lake Michigan was bolstered with heavy seas and two aviators were believed to have perished in the fall of an airplane.

In Missouri, Illinois and Indiana rail traffic and communications were paralyzed.

Arkansas and Oklahoma reported loss of life and property damage the preceding day.

MEXICO NOW CLAIMS SONORA

"PROVINCE NOW FREE OF REBELS—SITUATION IN COUNTRY IS NORMAL"

Mexico City, May 3—(UP)—The Mexican government claimed full possession of the state of Sonora today, two months after it first was seized by insurrectionists when the present revolt broke out.

The government admitted, however, it did not know the whereabouts of Gen. J. Gonzalo Escobar, rebel commander in chief, and of Gen. Roberto Cruz and Gen. Marcelo Caraveo.

Escobar and Caraveo last were reported fleeing towards the United States border, but whether they had succeeded in crossing the international boundary was not known.

A dispatch from Gen. Abelardo Rodriguez said federal soldiers had captured the rebel Gen. Agustin Camou, and added that "Sonora is now free of rebels as the situation throughout the country has become normal."

CLAIMS INCREASE IN FORESTRY GROWTH

seaboard and were accompanied by heavy rains.

A woman and child were killed at Laytonsville, Md., when a sudden gust of wind swept through the village, demolishing a house.

Two persons were injured during the wind storm which visited the District of Columbia.

Wire communication was disrupted and considerable property damage was inflicted by high winds in Central Pennsylvania. A wind of nearly cyclonic proportions destroyed two brick houses in Gettysburg, Pa.

FRIGID GALES IN LAKE AREA

Chicago, May 3—(UP)—Frigid gales which lashed destructive lake waters over the shores of the Great Lakes and snowstorms which damaged crops in several states held the central states in the grip of unseasonable weather today.

In the wake of tornadoes and hail storms which swept five southwest states Wednesday and Thursday, the Great Lakes states were blanketed with snow carried on the driving winds from the north and east.

On the northern edge of the southern area swept by tornadoes yesterday, a windstorm struck Columbus, Ohio, killing two prisoners and injuring three others at the city jail. Several nearby buildings were demolished.

In Missouri, Illinois and Indiana, rail traffic and communications were crippled. Lake traffic was demoralized by the tossing waves of Lake Michigan, which were believed to have engulfed two men in an airplane which was seen to fall into the lake during the storm.

Central Illinois reported the heaviest snowfall ever recorded in the month of May. Unofficial estimates stated that from four to six inches of snow fell in that area.

Thousands of fruit trees were in bloom and it was believed that much of the crop would be lost.

Atlanta, Ga., May 3—(UP)—Six southern states east of the Mississippi shivered in unseasonable temperatures today, as count was taken of storm damage and toll of the dead injured.

The mercury in the 24 hours ending at 9 a. m. today dropped at Atlanta from 70 to 40. Similar decreases were reported from all southern states, bringing frost in Tennessee, and snow in Appalachian regions.

Huge 'Beer Farm' Near LeSueur Center Raided, Said to Have Catered to High School Pupils

250 POUND ALLEGED HOSTESS IS ARRESTED

LARGE QUANTITY OF BEER DESTROYED BY PROHIBITION AGENTS

PROSECUTION TO BE MADE UNDER NEW AND SEVERE JONES LAW

St. Paul, May 3—(UP)—A huge "beer farm" near LeSueur Center, which according to federal agents catered solely to high school students was out of existence today and Mrs. Elizabeth Kennedy, 250-pound alleged hostess was under arrest charged with violation of the prohibition laws.

Prohibition men under the leadership of Maurice Silverman, state enforcement chief declared that a number of high school youths were found on the "farm" and a large quantity of beer destroyed.

While a search was made for Kennedy the government prepared to arraign Mrs. Kennedy and it was said that the prosecution would be made under the new and severe Jones law.

The "beer farm" was one of a number of places raided by the agents as they swung about LeSueur Center, Montgomery, Jordan, Kilkenny and Minneapolis.

Ten persons were arrested in all of which but two were from Minneapolis.

Included among those arrested were Edmund J. Leszen; Frank Tuma; Stewart Bentley and Jake H. Washa, all of Montgomery; Walter J. Polowski, LeSueur Center; Henry Siefert, Jordan; Rich and Belle Martin, Kilkenny; Joseph Donska and John H. Wilson, Minneapolis.

M. L. Harney, deputy Northwest prohibition administrator, announced that all ten would be arraigned late today and like Mrs. Kennedy, prosecuted under the Jones law.

Detroit, Mich., May 3.—(UP)—Floods, snowstorms and high winds today left a wake of damages estimated at $1,500,000 in Detroit, lower Michigan, Windsor, Ont., and other border cities.

With the wind subsiding and flood waters receding or stationary no further fears were felt for river and lake front residents living in cottages east of Windsor.

EYE WITNESS TO SCHOOL TRAGEDY

PRINCIPAL OF RYE COVE, VA., SCHOOL TELLS HOW TORNADO DO STRUCK BUILDING

Rye Cove, Va., May 3—(UP)—A vivid eye-witness story of the tornado which demolished a consolidated school here yesterday, killing 14 pupils, a teacher and injuring more than 100 others, was related to the United Press today by A. S. Noblin, principal of the school, who suffered minor injuries.

"It was 12:55 o'clock," Noblin said, "and classes were still recessed for noon. A light rain was falling and about 25 children were inside the building. The remainder were on the playground despite the rain."

"I was walking down the hall," Noblin continued, "when I saw what looked like a whirlwind coming up the hollow. Trees were swaying. As the whirlwind neared the school building it became a black cloud, appearing as though a tremendous amount of dirt had been gathered."

"It struck the building, and I believe I yelled. The next thing I remember I was standing knee-deep in a pond 75 feet from where the building had stood a moment before. I was badly shaken up and frightened and surprised that I was able to wade out of the water."

Noblin said bodies of the dead children were scattered over a wide radius. Many of them were killed outright. Others badly maimed, were deposited at random.

J. M. Johnson, a nearby resident, said he was standing on a hillside near the school when the storm struck, felling everything in its path.

"When the cloud struck the school it seemed to exert some supreme effort and then tornado and school house vanished as if by magic," Johnson said.

GENE HOWE HAS BIG FEET; HE ADMITS IT

Amarillo, Tex., May 3—(UP)—Gene Howe, editor of the Amarillo News, has rallied to the defense of a 15-year-old high school boy, suspended from his classes because he dared to speak his mind regarding the size of Howe's feet.

When Carl Hart, of Hollene, N. M., with 40 fellow high school students visited Howe's office here, as similar delegations do almost daily, Carl was so impressed and he spoke out of turn.

"Tack," Carl said, "you surely have big feet."

The students gasped and W. Relaf superintendent, was dumfounded. When the delegation returned to Hollene Carl was suspended from school.

The following day Howe received a letter from the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce.

"We take this method of expressing our regret over the remarks by a certain Carl Hart," the letter stated. "As regards your feet we are chagrined and hope you will not be prejudiced against our city. Carl has been suspended from the high school."

Howe immediately wired the Chamber he would consider it a personal affront if Carl was not reinstated immediately.

"We need more Carl Harts," Howe said. "He is just a boy who knows no better than to speak his mind. There is so much veneer and salve in big cities that few persons really realize what others think of them."

Carl is back in school.

DEVELOPMENTS OF EXECUTIVE SESSION LEAK OUT

Washington, May 3—(UP)—A deadlock on the Mellon case was reached in the senate judiciary committee today when it held its sixth day session and found it was unable to agree on anything, including the manner in which the committee should proceed.

The developments of the executive session leaked out.

Friends of Secretary of Treasury Mellon presented evidence to show nearly every secretary of treasury since Alexander Hamilton held corporate stocks, arguing that therefore the committee had no cause to proceed against Mellon under the old statute requiring that treasury secretaries have no direct or indirect interest in trade or commerce.

Senator Hastings, Rep., a new comer to the senate, questioned the propriety of members of the committee divulging the deposition given by Mellon in a civil suit involving the Aluminum Company of America. Release of the deposition was defended by other committee members who said they saw no reason for keeping it secret. The deposition tended to show Mellon's ex officio connections with the Aluminum company.

The suggestion that Mellon be invited to appear before the committee to explain some indefinite points in the deposition occupied the remainder of the session. Mellon's friends took the position the committee was not empowered to go in to the evidence and must confine its deliberations to the legal question of Mellon's rights to his office.

By PAUL R. MALLON

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, May 3—(UP)—The off-stage congressional debate over Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's stock holdings as a bar to office was whetted today with a statement from Senator Carter Glass, Virginia Democrat, and treasury secretary under President Wilson, who said he had stock holdings and thought every other secretary in history owned stock while in office.

Glass' statement came while the judiciary committee was holding its sixth day session, arguing over the pending Norris report which holds Mellon is ineligible to continue in his cabinet post because of his vast stock interests in the Aluminum Company of America and other corporations.

Glass said he knew his two predecessors William G. McAdoo and Houston were stock owners. Alexander Hamilton, first secretary of treasury is known to have owned stock in a New York bank, and Secretary Manning in the Cleveland administration had large stock holdings.

"Of course I owned stock," Glass said when he was requested for a statement. "Why I was the largest individual stockholder in an industry in my own state, but I did give up my bank stock which wasn't hard to do because I had so little."

The issue is whether Mellon's stock holdings constitute an interest in trade and commerce, violating the old statute that a treasury secretary must not be interested directly or indirectly in either.

While Mellon matter was being fought out in committee, the senate discussed the Watson amendment to the farm bill, proposing to strike out the debenture clause. Chairman McNary of the senate agriculture committee in charge of the bill expects to get a vote by tonight, if possible but many senators yet remain to be heard.

As soon as the debenture matter is out of the way an early vote on the bill is expected. McNary wants a final vote Saturday.

BRAINERD, MINNESOTA

D. A. R. ENTERTAIN THE NIGHT SCHOOL

Regent Mrs. Martha Ann Bronson
City Hall

EDUCATION VALUE STRESSED

Later Class, Teachers and Others Are
Guests at Luncheon and
Social Hour

The Samuel Huntington Chapter, D. A. R. entertained the teacher and class of 1929 of the Brainerd night school, Tuesday evening, as they have done each year since the school was founded. The regent, Mrs. Martha Ann Bronson, addressing the class at the city hall, stressed the importance of good reading, recommending the "National Republic" as a magazine that published only authentic bits of American history and taught sound American doctrines.

"No matter what compromises we are forced to make in providing for our bodies," the speaker said, "we must give our minds only the best. For education—which is mind-training and is secured from our reading quite as much as from our schooling—is the one perfect possession, of which we may not be deprived by fire, thieves or financial losses."

Leaving the city hall, Mrs. Bronson and the vice regent, Mrs. R. T. Campbell, the teacher, Miss Bratvitt, the ex-teacher, Miss Milena Vanasek, the 16 members of the class and two or three additional guests, repaired to the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Hayes, on South Seventh, for a social hour, coffee, cake and sandwiches.

Noting the alert intelligence of the faces of these prospective, foreign-born citizens, the fine courtesy with which they stood and helped sing the national anthem, and reflecting on the courage and determination, the commendable ambition they exhibit in their faithful attendance at the school each night at the close of a day of labor, one can have no hesitation in replying with a hearty affirmative to the question, "Does the Night School Pay?" Five of these 16 will get their naturalization papers this year; seven will graduate. Two have been attending after graduation, securing every additional bit of education available. Some are young men, almost boys; two are elderly women. All are keenly alive to their opportunity and appreciative of the privilege of citizenship.

MARQUETTE TO BE BUILT BY BUICK

First Announcement of New Six
Cylinder Made
Today

Marquette will be the name of the new six cylinder motor car which the Buick Motor Company is to introduce into the lower priced field early in the summer, according to an announcement made yesterday by E. T. Strong, president and general manager.

Built by Buick, the Marquette will have the tremendous production and sales facilities of that organization at its command, a distinct advantage to both the factory and the purchaser. Twenty-five years experience in the building of fine motor cars has placed Buick in a position to manufacture a car of unusual appeal in the lower priced field.

Thousands upon thousands of craftsmen, schooled over a long period of years in the art of quality car manufacturing, have been assigned the task of producing the Marquette.

In addition, the facilities of General Motors, including the Research Laboratories and Proving Ground, have been brought into play in planning the new six.

The great resources of the Fisher Body Corp., also have been utilized in the development of bodies for the new car.

The intricacies of automotive engineering were given careful study in developing its mechanical parts at both the General Motors Research Laboratories and in the Buick engineering division. The cars, in various stages of progress, were put through thousands and thousands of miles of gruelling grinds at the General Motors Proving Grounds in order that a proven product should be offered.

Distribution of the new Marquette through the sales channels already established by Buick makes it unnecessary to pioneer in the matter of delivering the new product to purchasers.

With all of these phases of manufacture, sales and delivery already firmly established, the Buick Motor Company will be able to offer service unparalleled in the introduction of a new car to the motoring public.

Why do GOODYEARS far outsell any other tires

===if any other tires are "better" or even as good

If you are told that some other tire "has a better tread than the Goodyear" . . .

Stop and think, if it is actually true, why millions more people buy Goodyear Tires.

If you are told that some other tire "has a better carcass than the Goodyear" . . .

Before you accept such a statement, stop and think why millions more people buy Goodyear Tires.

There is nothing in this world which compels car owners to choose Goodyear Tires.

If any other tire offered any advantages over a Goodyear, would not the public be buying that other make in largest numbers?

If any other tire equaled a Goodyear, would it not be as popular as Goodyear?

Instead, you find Goodyear producing MILLIONS MORE TIRES than any other company—outdistancing all competition by greatly increasing lengths each year. Stop and think WHY.

Most car owners have had years of experience with tires. They compare their experiences with those of their friends. Tire buyers are wise, very wise, today.

Enthusiastic "talk," strong "claims," advertising that promises everything—your experienced car owner is little impressed by such salesmanship.

The one thing, however, which continues to sell him is this fact, which checks with his personal experience and that of his friends: MILLIONS MORE PEOPLE RIDE ON GOODYEAR TIRES because billions of miles of motoring over roads everywhere continually prove Goodyear Tires to be the best.

Best—not by any small margin—but best by so marked a degree in life, traction, mileage and freedom from trouble that it means a great many dollars saved each year to always buy Goodyears!

D. A. R. ENTERTAIN THE NIGHT SCHOOL

City Hall

EDUCATION VALUE STRESSED

Later Class, Teachers and Others Are
Guests at Luncheon and
Social Hour

The Samuel Huntington Chapter, D. A. R. entertained the teacher and class of 1929 of the Brainerd night school, Tuesday evening, as they have done each year since the school was founded. The regent, Mrs. Martha Ann Bronson, addressing the class at the city hall, stressed the importance of good reading, recommending the "National Republic" as a magazine that published only authentic bits of American history and taught sound American doctrines.

"No matter what compromises we are forced to make in providing for our bodies," the speaker said, "we must give our minds only the best. For education—which is mind-training and is secured from our reading—is the one perfect possession, of which we may not be deprived by fire, thieves or financial losses."

Leaving the city hall, Mrs. Bronson and the vice regent, Mrs. R. T. Campbell, the teacher, Miss Bratvitt, the ex-teacher, Miss Milena Vanasek, the 16 members of the class and two or three additional guests, repaired to the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Hayes, on South Seventh, for a social hour, coffee, cake and sandwiches.

Noting the alert intelligence of the faces of these prospective, foreign-born citizens, the fine courtesy with which they stood and helped sing the national anthem, and reflecting on the courage and determination, the commendable ambition they exhibit in their faithful attendance at the school each night at the close of a day of labor, one can have no hesitation in replying with a hearty affirmative to the question, "Does the Night School Pay?" Five of these 16 will get their naturalization papers this year; seven will graduate. Two have been attending after graduation, securing every additional bit of education available. Some are young men, almost boys; two are elderly women. All are keenly alive to their opportunity and appreciative of the privilege of citizenship.

FRIDAY, MAY 3, 1929

ETHICS IN BUSINESS

THE business world of the last few years has seen many changes. Previous to and during the war there was a period of nearly twenty years when business was interested in keeping its house in order, when codes of ethics were being adopted and every man was accorded an equal opportunity as a business proprietor.

At the close of the war, it was noticed that there was a great let-down in the observance of ethical standards. The let-down was emphasized by the repudiation of many contracts executed during the war. Great national organizations discussed the situation, but improvement came slowly.

The third phase of this interesting picture is just now unfolding. The old order of things is on its way and we are about to see business with a renewed sense of social obligation and a broader outlook upon its world.

Recently a growing interest and activity in the development of professional ethics has afforded a definite and fruitful approach to the general problems of social morality. The lawyer long ago recognized an obligation, not only to himself and his associates, but also to his clients and the public at large, to state clearly and adequately what he conceived to be the ethical relations engendered by his professional activities. The doctor soon followed it. Within the past few years, there has developed not only a revival of interest in business morality, but actual progress which shows promise of a brilliant future. Symptoms of an awakening professional consciousness are evident in the engineer, the teacher, the journalist, the realtor and the business man. Agencies are being provided for dealing effectively with breaches of professional etiquette, in order to secure to the profession that most important asset, the goodwill of the public. Many professions are finding themselves in the recognition of their part in public life. All are availing themselves of the opportunity of enhancing their dignity and respect through a formal expression of their ethical relations in society.

Not only are business and professional men learning that they owe a duty to society in serving in their immediate worlds and also that commercial etiquette is necessary in gaining public goodwill—they are becoming aware of the fact that ethical conduct in business is absolutely reflected on the balance sheet. The majority of commercial institutions in this country are headed by men who have a high sense of moral obligation and do not countenance any deviation from that policy. In many cases, unfortunately, these men are unable to represent their firms in all of their contacts with others. It is at this point that many a slip is made by an employee who mistakes a breach of business ethics for a duty to his employer. We must rearrange our educational policy so that we educate up from the bottom and not down from the top.

In every industry is still to be found a great many unfair practices which must be eliminated before business can take care of itself without government. This work has been started in earnest because business has learned that unethical practices are not only the cause of direct waste but they lead to misunderstandings, distrust and, sometimes, costly litigation. Therefore, it is to the interest of every business man that these causes of waste and of dissension of a wasteful character shall be abolished.

MENTION OUR LAKE COUNTRY

THE period of heavy summer travel is approaching, stimulated by low round-trip rates, according to E. E. Nelson, passenger traffic manager of the Northern Pacific. We are glad to see that considerable attention is paid to the Minnesota lake country. On June 1 the Minnesota lake resort rates become effective.

On May 15, regular summer tourist rates will become effective to Pacific Northwest destinations, Spokane, Walla Walla, Portland, Seattle, Tacoma, Vancouver, Victoria and California one way via the North Coast Limited.

On June 1, Yellowstone Park rates to Gardiner, Bozeman, and Cody will be available and at the same time special dude ranch rates to points in Montana, including Forsyth, Billings, Columbus, Big Timber, Red Lodge, Bozeman, Helena, Butte, Missoula, and Folsom will be authorized.

STILL GAINING

IN a report from Mike Holm, Secretary of State, the Dispatch is informed that the increase in motor vehicle registration is continuing.

Here are the figures which show the gain from January 1 to May 1 of this year over the same period last year:

Number registered up to May 1, 1928, was 597,074 and the amount collected was $8,951,709.21.

Number registered up to May 1, 1929, was 639,970 and amount collected to May 1, 1929, is $9,558,810.63.

This makes a gain in registrations of 42,896 and collections

A SOVEREIGN REMEDY

PUBLICITY is a remedy for many ills of the state. Even in youthful days many of us had grounded in us the idea that "putting a piece in the paper" would effect results.

Publicity these days in all matters of governmental concern effects reforms and helps to preserve our rights and liberties. Bona fide publicity is meant, not propaganda parading in the guise of news.

Thorough publicity such as was accorded presidential speakers in the last campaign killed the idea of sectional campaign talks.

THE sixth and ninth districts of the Bankers Association of Minnesota plan a joint session at Detroit Lakes June 5 and 6. Julius C. Nelson of Pequot is president of the former, with R. W. Smyth of Park Rapids secretary. The ninth district head is A. G. Schwarzkopf of Perham, and A. A. Habedank of Ada is secretary.

AMONG the few game and fish conservation laws passed this session is one which prohibits catching of trout between 9 p. m. and sunrise.

LAW enforcement, whether it is enunciated at Washington or Minneapolis, gets the front page headlines.

EVERYBODY is hoping the Queen of May will be able to appear without her winter furs.

Daphne by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

DAPHNE HAINES, seventeen and lovely, finds life intolerable because of a nagging, jealous stepmother whose main aim is to promote a courtship between her own daughter, Crystal, and wealthy, attractive Ralph McKevitt. Catching a fleeting glimpse of Daphne, the "prize" young man admires her. Mrs. Haines, fearing the rivalry of the younger girl, schemes to eliminate her from the scene. Daphne dismayed when she realizes how completely these two calculating women have her father in their power, comforts herself by spinning secret dreams of a day when someone will really love her—a man, big, powerful, handsome, like Ralph! A sordid quarrel is provoked between Haines and his wife because of the woman's reckless expenditures. Subtly Mrs. Haines draws Daphne into the brawl. Feeling the hopelessness of her situation, Daphne determines to make her own way in the world, and leaves for San Francisco. With twenty dollars capital she seeks employment and learns it is hard to find. Daphne has an unpleasant experience with a prospective employer and in her haste to get away from him, leaves a purse containing her last five dollars in his office. The wolf seems perilously close. Hunger seizes her and she walks the streets wondering what she can buy to eat with a nickel. She decides upon a cup of coffee. At the Java Inn, a cheap restaurant, a young man sensing Daphne's plight, buys her a plate of ham and eggs. His face seems vaguely familiar.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XI.

DAPHNE climbed into the roadster with a heart like lead. "Pickup! That's what I am—a pickup!" she thought, and she thought of the other girl who had whizzed by in another roadster, laughing, "having a wonderful time . . . if only she could be like that . . . merry . . . not caring. . ."

She heard herself saying, "I live way out on Geary Street. If it's too far to drive me, you could take me to the Geary car."

"What? Trying to shake me again?"

"Oh, no—just thinking it might be too far out of your way to—"

"All right, I'll take you right home, no foolin'. Sure you don't want a little drive out to the beach first, though? Another plate of ham and?"

"No, honestly—I'd rather go home—some other time."

"Some other time is right. Come on, tell me your name and address and telephone number—no fakes now."

She told him, in a strained, unnatural voice, so low that he had to lean close to hear it.

"Daphne Haines!" He whistled, long drawn out, amused whistle. "Well, I'll be darned. And you don't know me? Say, it doesn't take you long to forget a fellow?"

"You aren't—you aren't Ralph McKevitt!"

Even as she said it she knew he was. Ralph . . . meeting Ralph again like this, and not knowing him. Ralph, whose pictures she had saved for years; Ralph, whom she had dreamed about ever since that day in the orchard, when she found her under the trees and said she was beautiful . . . Beautiful!

She felt beautiful just remembering it. She lifted her face to his, faintly smiling, and in the glare of a passing street light he saw the misty, stary wonder of her eyes, the parted sweetness of her lips.

"I don't know why I didn't know you . . . I guess it was because I never really saw you before, and I guess I never thought I'd ever really know you . . . did you really know me again? Was that why you spoke to me back there at the coffee shop?"

She was so young and pleading, so pathetically, tragically young.

"Sure I knew you. Knew you right away. What did you think?"

She gave a little shuddering sigh of happiness and snuggled closer to his rough tweed overcoat. The car sped on, houses passed in a beautiful blur . . . everything was beautiful . . . the deserted streets, the foggy night, the street lamps at the corners.

"I went to all the games!" she said suddenly out of the silence. "I never missed one!"

"Never missed one what?"

"Football game—that you played!"

"Oh!" He chuckled. "You mean when I was in college—how did you remember all that?" But he was pleased . . . so she'd seen him play . . . "Well, these were the days, Daphne."

They lapsed into silence again, each acutely conscious of the other's nearness. When he stopped in front of the ugly square old house where the Hainces lived she couldn't believe that they were there already.

"Well, here we are, safe and sound," he said.

"Yes, here we are," she echoed, unwilling to leave him so soon, not knowing how to keep him or how to ask him to see her. "We are!" And she didn't know any move to get out.

He grinned, and stopped the motor. "So this is where you are living. Well, well! What did the family say about all this city life?"

"Oh, they don't care."

"No?"

"I mean they know I'm here working—at least they know I'm in San Francisco. But please, please don't say anything to Crystal about me. I don't want anyone

key in the door. "Well—good night!"

"Good night!" She closed the door slowly, and watched him through the glass while he went back to the car and drove away.

It was dark and musty in the hall, but Daphne didn't mind. She sang under her breath as she groped her way along the wall, past the parlor, past the marble table and hatrack, to her own door. "Lay my head beneath the rose!" she sang softly, a little breathlessly, the song the lurching seamen had sung on the wharves near the black waters. But she had forgotten where she had heard it; she didn't even know she was singing. The song just bubbled out of her throat as a bird's song does, because she was so happy. She had found Ralph again, and he liked her. . . .

As she was undressing she thought disquietly: "I shouldn't let him lend me that money from a man!" But it was Ralph who had loaned it, and Ralph was different. Anything that Ralph did would be all right. She was smiling to herself again as she stood on tiptoes in her plain white nightgown and turned off the light. She crawled into bed without stopping to remove the faded Turkey red coverlet that was supposed to turn it into a couch to know until—until I'm settled—"

He looked at her with frank admiration.

"Why should I say anything to Crystal?"

"Don't you see Crystal any more?" And at the thought that he might not, her face was illumined again, all shinning with hope. If he didn't see Crystal, he might come to see her—he might.

"Oh, I see her once in a while, he said indifferently, as if he were speaking of something uninteresting that didn't concern them at all. Then, leaning toward her again, more intimately, "You're out of work, aren't you?"

"No, it's just that I haven't found any yet—"

"And you have just five cents left! I'll say you're unconcerned about it. My Lord, out of a job, and five cents—and not turning a hair. It beats me!"

He looked at her with such frank admiration in his handsome face that she tingled with excitement, feeling herself the heroine of an adventure, almost gloating over her own hard luck. "Oh, something'll turn up!" she said airily, forgetting the black despair of a few short hours ago.

"Well, I'm going to lend you ten bucks—yes, I am—don't argue with me, and I'll get you a job. I know a lot of people. There's one fellow in particular. . . . Well, I'll see him, and I'll give you a ring in a day or two. Sure ten is enough? Now don't worry and we'll have something for you in no time . . . sure you won't worry?"

"Of course not! And I'll pay you back—"

"Waited while she fitted her latch

by day. Her tired body relaxed, but she couldn't sleep, she was too happy. She lay, with parted lips, looking out into the dark alley, watching the torn curtain flutter in the faint night wind.

"He wanted to kiss me when he said goodbye . . . I know he did . . . I could tell by the way he leaned toward me, sort of asking with his eyes . . . I had leaned toward him then . . . I wish I had . . . no, I don't . . . yes, I do . . ."

Ding. Ding. Old Mrs. Hinckle's clock striking in the kitchen. Was it really two o'clock already? She'd have to stop thinking, and go to sleep . . .

But instead, she got up, very quietly, and turned on the light, studying her flushed face in the streaked mirror over the bureau. How bright her eyes were! She was pretty; she really was! She could just see her face and the tops of her shoulders, the mirror was so small and so high. Did he still think she was beautiful? As beautiful as Crystal? She knew that she could never be as lovely as Crystal—Crystal with her curly hair and her dimples—but could he really think that she was?

She thought of his twinkling blue eyes, his smooth, fair hair brushed cleanly back, like the men in the collar ads . . . his broad shoulders and his firm, well kept hands . . . Good looking. And nice. Besides, he liked her . . . and he only saw Crystal once in a while . . .

She put some freckle cream on her nose, climbed back into bed and slept.

Art of Engraving

In 1822 Thomas Lipton introduced soft steel for engraving. Before that time copper was used. The invention of giving a steel coating to a finished copperplate engraving made the old medium as commercially productive as the steel and soon ended the career of the latter.

ETHICS IN BUSINESS

THE business world of the last few years has seen many changes. Previous to and during the war there was a period of nearly twenty years when business was interested in keeping its house in order, when codes of ethics were being adopted and every man was accorded an equal opportunity as a business proprietor. At the close of the war, it was noticed that there was a great let-down in the observance of ethical standards. The let-down was emphasized by the repudiation of many contracts executed during the war. Great national organizations discussed the situation, but improvement came slowly.

The third phase of this interesting picture is just now unfolding. The old order of things is on its way and we are about to see business with a renewed sense of social obligation and a broader outlook upon its world.

Recently a growing interest and activity in the development of professional ethics has afforded a definite and fruitful approach to the general problems of social morality. The lawyer long ago recognized an obligation, not only to himself and his associates, but also to his clients and the public at large, to state clearly and adequately what he conceived to be the ethical relations engendered by his professional activities. The doctor soon followed it. Within the past few years, there has developed not only a revival of interest in business morality, but actual progress which shows promise of a brilliant future. Symptoms of an awakening professional consciousness are evident in the engineer, the teacher, the journalist, the realtor and the business man. Agencies are being provided for dealing effectively with breaches of professional etiquette, in order to secure to the profession that most important asset, the goodwill of the public. Many professions are finding themselves in the recognition of their part in public life. All are availing themselves of the opportunity of enhancing their dignity and respect through a formal expression of their ethical relations in society.

Not only are business and professional men learning that they owe a duty to society in serving in their immediate worlds and also that commercial etiquette is necessary in gaining public goodwill—they are becoming aware of the fact that ethical conduct in business is absolutely reflected on the balance sheet. The majority of commercial institutions in this country are headed by men who have a high sense of moral obligation and do not countenance any deviation from that policy. In many cases, unfortunately, these men are unable to represent their firms in all of their contacts with others. It is at this point that many a slip is made by an employee who mistakes a breach of business ethics for a duty to his employer. We must rearrange our educational policy so that we educate up from the bottom and not down from the top.

In every industry is still to be found a great many unfair practices which must be eliminated before business can take care of itself without government. This work has been started in earnest because business has learned that unethical practices are not only the cause of direct waste but they lead to misunderstandings, distrust and, sometimes, costly litigation. Therefore, it is to the interest of every business man that these causes of waste and of dissension of a wasteful character shall be abolished.

MENTION OUR LAKE COUNTRY

THE period of heavy summer travel is approaching, stimulated by low round-trip rates, according to E. E. Nelson, passenger traffic manager of the Northern Pacific. We are glad to see that considerable attention is paid to the Minnesota lake country. On June 1 the Minnesota lake resort rates become effective.

On May 15, regular summer tourist rates will become effective to Pacific Northwest destinations, Spokane, Walla Walla, Portland, Seattle, Tacoma, Vancouver, Victoria and California one way via the North Coast Limited.

On June 1, Yellowstone Park rates to Gardiner, Bozeman, and Cody will be available and at the same time special dude ranch rates to points in Montana, including Forsyth, Billings, Columbus, Big Timber, Red Lodge, Bozeman, Helena, Butte, Missoula, and Folsom will be authorized.

STILL GAINING

IN a report from Mike Holm, Secretary of State, the Dispatch is informed that the increase in motor vehicle registration is continuing.

Here are the figures which show the gain from January 1 to May 1 of this year over the same period last year:
Number registered up to May 1, 1928, was 597,074 and the amount collected was $8,951,709.21.

Number registered up to May 1, 1929, was 639,970 and amount collected to May 1, 1929, is $9,558,810.63.
of $607,101.42.

This makes a gain in registrations of 42,896 and collections

A SOVEREIGN REMEDY

PUBLICITY is a remedy for many ills of the state. Even in youthful days many of us had grounded in us the idea that "putting a piece in the paper" would effect results.

Publicity these days in all matters of governmental concern effects reforms and helps to preserve our rights and liberties. Bona fide publicity is meant, not propaganda parading in the guise of news.

Thorough publicity such as was accorded presidential speakers in the last campaign killed the idea of sectional campaign talks.

THE sixth and ninth districts of the Bankers Association of Minnesota plan a joint session at Detroit Lakes June 5 and 6. Julius C. Nelson of Pequot is president of the former, with R. W. Smyth of Park Rapids secretary. The ninth district head is A. G. Schwarzrock of Perham, and A. A. Habedank of Ada is secretary.

AMONG the few game and fish conservation laws passed this session is one which prohibits catching of trout between 9 p. m. and sunrise.

LAW enforcement, whether it is enunciated at Washington or Minneapolis, gets the front page headlines.

EVERYBODY is hoping the Queen of May will be able to appear without her winter furs.

Daphne by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

DAPHNE HAINES, seventeen and lovely, finds life intolerable because of a nagging, jealous stepmother whose main aim is to promote a courtship between her own daughter, Crystal, and wealthy, attractive Ralph McKevitt. Catching a fleeting glimpse of Daphne, the "prize" young man admires her. Mrs. Haines, fearing the rivalry of the younger girl, schemes to eliminate her from the scene. Daphne dismayed when she realizes how completely these two calculating women have her father in their power, comforts herself by spinning secret dreams of a day when someone will really love her—a man, big, powerful, handsome, like Ralph! A sordid quarrel is provoked between Haines and his wife because of the woman's reckless expenditures. Subtly Mrs. Haines draws Daphne into the brawl. Feeling the hopelessness of her situation, Daphne determines to make her own way in the world, and leaves for San Francisco. With twenty dollars capital she seeks employment and learns it is hard to find. Daphne has an unpleasant experience with a prospective employer and in her haste to get away from him, leaves a purse containing her last five dollars in his office. The wolf seems perilously close. Hunger seizes her and she walks the streets wondering what she can buy to eat with a nickel. She decides upon a cup of coffee. At the Java Inn, a cheap restaurant, a young man serving Daphne's plight, buys her a plate of ham and eggs. His face seems vaguely familiar.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XI.

DAPHNE climbed into the roadster with a heart like lead. "Pickup! That's what I am—a pickup!" she thought, and she thought of the other girl who had whizzed by in another roadster, laughing, having a wonderful time . . . if only she could be like that . . . merry . . . not caring. . .

She heard herself saying, "I live way out on Geary Street. If it's too far to drive me, you could make me to the Geary car."

"What? Trying to shake me again?"

"Oh, no—just thinking it might be too far out of your way to—"

"She stopped in confusion, conscious that he was laughing at her."

"All right, I'll take you right home, no foolin'. Sure you don't want a little drive out to the beach first, though? Another plate of ham and—"

"No, honestly—I'd rather go home—some other time."

"Some other time is right. Come on, tell me your name and address and telephone number—no fakes now."

She told him, in a strained, unnatural voice, so low that he had to lean close to hear it.

"Daphne Haines!" He whistled, a long drawn out, amused whistle.

"Well, I'll be darned. And you don't know me? Say, it doesn't take you long to forget a fellow!"

"You aren't—you aren't Ralph McKevitt!"

"Good night!" She closed the door slowly, and watched him through the glass while he went back to the car and drove away. It was dark and musty in the hall, but Daphne didn't mind. She sang under her breath as she groped her way along the wall, past the parlor, past the marble table and hatrack, to her own door. "Lay my head beneath the rose," she sang softly, a little breathlessly, the song the lurching seamen had sung on the wharves near the black waters. But she had forgotten where she had heard it; she didn't even know she was singing. The song just bubbled out of her throat as a bird's song does, because she was so happy. She had found Ralph again, and he liked her. . . .

As she was undressing she thought disquietly: "I shouldn't let him lend me that money from a man!" But it was Ralph who had loaned it, and Ralph was different. Anything that Ralph did would be all right.

She was smiling to herself again as she stood on tiptoes in her plain white nightgown and turned off the light. She crawled into bed without stopping to remove the faded Turkey red coverlet that was supposed to turn it into a couch

key in the door. "Well—good night!"

2,000 ATHLETES GATHER FOR OHIO RELAYS MEET TODAY

OPENER IS DEVOTED TO SCHOOL EVENTS

TOMORROW GEORGE SIMPSON, FLEET DASHMAN, TO COMPETE

10 STATES AND 250 SCHOOLS ARE REPRESENTED IN PROGRAM

Ohio Stadium, Columbus, May 3—(UP)—Two thousand ambitious athletes gathered within the towering walls of the stadium today to participate in the sixth annual Ohio relays as guests of Ohio State university.

Rain for the starting gun at 1:30 p. m. appeared in prospect. Clouds banked the skies this morning and a cold northwest wind was blowing.

Much of today's program will be devoted to scholastic events, with a few Ohio college games and preliminaries in the high school half mile relay at 4:50 p. m. bringing the day to a close.

A larger attendance is expected tomorrow when the great George Simpson, Ohio State's fleet dashman, and such stars as Brown of Pittsburgh and Elder of Notre Dame compete in the invitation century. The relays were inaugurated six years ago, with but a few Ohio colleges competing. Today ten states and more than 250 schools were represented.

Presiding over it all was Major John L. Griffith, athletic commissioner of the Western conference who will be supreme arbiter in all the contests.

A program of 19 relays and 16 special events, including every phase of the track and triathlon, has been arranged.

BASEBALL NOTES

Lou Niebert, St. Louis outfielder, has signed with the Columbus club of the Southern league.

Pete Ritchie, former San Francisco Seals catcher, has been purchased by Indianapolis of the American association.

Tommy Leach, Pittsburgh star of old, has signed as coach and assistant to Manager Wilbur Good at Atlanta.

Greensboro of the Piedmont league has sold outfielder Sut Austin to the Fayetteville club of the Eastern Carolina league.

Taylor Douthitt, St. Louis outfielder, has signed with the Columbus club of the Southern league.

Tom Nash, former Georgia Tech football star, has signed a contract with the Asheville team of the South Atlantic league. He will try for an outfield position.

Bill White, Georgia's baseball coach has only one arm, but he hits fungoes in daily practice, and also can shoot 18 holes of golf in the nineties. He pitches now and then.

Kansas City of the American association has purchased Walter Collins, twenty-two-year-old pitcher, from the Muskogee club of the Western association for 1930 delivery.

The Dallas Steers cut one name off the dining room list at the Corsicana camp when Chief Gaddis, a pitcher, was dropped. The release of Gaddis was made as a favor to the player.

Alexander Hyzer, twenty-one-year-old Clyde (Ohio) boy, has signed a contract with the St. Louis Cardinal organization. He is an outfielder and will be trained at the Danville clearing house.

Howard Williamson, outfielder with Houston in the Texas league, has ambitions of being a great artist some day. While attending Texas university he drew cartoons for the comic magazine.

Rip Radcliffe, an outfielder with the Paris team of the Lone Star league last season, has been obtained by Muskogee of the Western association. He was the property of the Dallas club of the Texas league.

The Newark Bears may change their nickname to the Gray Eagles, in honor of the new manager. The Rochester club last year got the new name of Red Wings. Baltimore at ways has been "Orioles."

Connie Mack, who at the age of sixty-six is the oldest big league manager in the history of baseball, began his professional diamond career 45 years ago as catcher of the Meriden team in the Eastern league.

Yesterday's Hero—Lefty Grove, Philadelphia pitcher who held the Boston Red Sox to six hits and won his second victory in two days for the Athletics, 5 to 1. Grove pitched five innings of Wednesday's 24 to 6 rout at Boston—enough to give him credit for the victory. Mack sent him back to the mound yesterday and Grove pitched an excellent game.

The New York Giants built up a two run lead over the Brooklyn Robins, before play was suspended by a severe rain storm in the second inning.

All other games in both leagues were cancelled because of the weather.

CITY LEAGUE HEADS TO MEET TONIGHT

NEW ARRANGEMENT PERMITS EACH TEAM TO CARRY 18 MEN UNTIL JUNE 1

Officers of the city baseball league will meet tonight at the Y. M. C. A. to complete arrangements for the starting of the league schedule in the near future.

Rosters are to be completed at tonight's meeting and as a result of action taken at the last meeting, each team will be permitted to carry eighteen men until June 1. This will give new men a chance to try out.

It is essential that all officers of the league be at tonight's meeting in order to complete the business. Practice will be held at the aviation field tomorrow afternoon weather permitting.

Varieties of Police Dogs
The term "police dog" does not indicate any particular breed, but only the purpose to which dogs of various breeds can be, and are trained. Shepherd dogs of Germany, France, Russia and Belgium, together with pure-bred dogs of other breeds, cross-breeds and mongrels have been trained and used as police dogs.

PADDOCK RECORD OF LAST YEAR IS DENIED APPROVAL

SINCE THEN THERE HAVE BEEN MANY RECORD BREAKING PERFORMANCES

NINE AND TWO-FIFTHS SECONDS MARK MAY BE APPROACHED

By WILLIAM J. DUNN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, May 3—If nine men can run the 100 yard distance in 9 3-5 seconds it is only logical to assume that one of the nine, under favorable conditions, can better the mark, at least by a tenth of a second.

This argument will be placed before the next meeting of the International Amateur Athletic Federation, the body that puts the stamp of official recognition on world track and field records.

Last summer the federation met during the Olympic games to consider applications for records. At that time a mark of 9 5-10 seconds, made by Charles Paddock under championship conditions, was placed before them for their approval.

The approval was denied under the assumption that a watch, timed to tenths of a second, might not be infallible. As a result the record book shows five men as official record holders while Paddock is recognized as having equalled the 9 3-5 mark six times.

The other joint holders, officially, are D. J. Kelly, H. P. Drew and Chester Bowman, of the United States, and Cyril Coaffee, of Canada. It would be a hard task to enumerate the number of record equalling performances, recorded since the last meeting of the I. A. A. F. Only last Saturday the record was equalled four times—twice by Frank Wykoff and once by Charles Borah, at Fresno, Calif., and once by George Simpson at Philadelphia.

On the preceding Saturday Simpson, in a dual meet at Ohio State, was timed in 9 5-10 under apparently normal conditions.

Claude Bracey, Rice Institute star, has been timed at 9 2-5, 9 5-10 and 9 3-5, on various occasions this year. He had a wind at his back when the clockers caught at the first time.

In the record books of the A. A. U., the 100 yard dash is the only flat distance race in which more than one record equalling performance is recognized.

Unless action is taken at the next meeting of the I. A. A. F. it may become necessary to issue a special supplement to the record books, containing nothing but the names of those who have run 100 yards in 9 2-5 seconds.

Police Investigate Death of Charles W. Enz

Minneapolis, May 3.—(UP)—Police today continued their investigation into the death of Charles W. Enz, who was shot twice below the heart and fatally wounded here Thursday. James Brew, who lived in the same building and with whom Enz was said to have been unfriendly, was held for questioning.

FARM YOUTH FACES TRIAL FOR MURDER

Stillwater, April 3.—(UP)—Washington county authorities indicated here today that unless Roy Mattson, 22, Scandia, Minn., farm youth, was adjudged insane before May 13 when the grand jury convenes, he would be brought to trial charged with the murder of his mother, Mrs. Hulda Mattson, 49, and his brother, Clarence, 23. Mrs. Mattson and Clarence were shot to death on April 26 during a family argument.

CITY LEAGUE HEADS TO MEET TONIGHT

NEW ARRANGEMENT PERMITS EACH TEAM TO CARRY 18 MEN UNTIL JUNE 1

Officers of the city baseball league will meet tonight at the Y. M. C. A. to complete arrangements for the starting of the league schedule in the near future.

Rosters are to be completed at tonight's meeting and as a result of action taken at the last meeting, each team will be permitted to carry eighteen men until June 1. This will give new men a chance to try out.

It is essential that all officers of the league be at tonight's meeting in order to complete the business.

Practice will be held at the aviation field tomorrow afternoon weather permitting.

Varieties of Police Dogs
The term "police dog" does not indicate any particular breed, but only the purpose to which dogs of various breeds can be, and are trained. Shepherd dogs of Germany, France, Russia and Belgium, together with pure-bred dogs of other breeds, cross-breeds and mongrels have been trained and used as police dogs.

PADDOCK RECORD OF LAST YEAR IS DENIED APPROVAL

SINCE THEN THERE HAVE BEEN MANY RECORD BREAKING PERFORMANCES

NINE AND TWO-FIFTHS SECONDS MARK MAY BE APPROACHED

By WILLIAM J. DUNN

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, May 3—If nine men can run the 100 yard distance in 9 3-5 seconds it is only logical to assume that one of the nine, under favorable conditions, can better the mark, at least by a tenth of a second.

This argument will be placed before the next meeting of the International Amateur Athletic Federation, the body that puts the stamp of official recognition on world track and field records.

Last summer the federation met during the Olympic games to consider applications for records. At that time a mark of 9 5-10 seconds, made by Charles Paddock under championship conditions, was placed before them for their approval.

The approval was denied under the assumption that a watch, timed to tenths of a second, might not be infallible. As a result the record book shows five men as official record holders while Paddock is recognized as having equalled the 9 3-5 mark six times.

The other joint holders, officially, are D. J. Kelly, H. P. Drew and Chester Bowman, of the United States, and Cyril Coaffee, of Canada. It would be a hard task to enumerate the number of record equalling performances recorded since the last meeting of the I. A. A. F.

Only last Saturday the record was equalled four times—twice by Frank Wykoff and once by Charles Borah, at Fresno, Calif., and once by George Simpson at Philadelphia.

On the preceding Saturday Simpson, in a dual meet at Ohio State, was timed in 9 5-10 under apparently normal conditions.

Claude Bracey, Rice Institute star, has been timed at 9 2-5, 9 5-10 and 9 3-5, on various occasions this year. He had a wind at his back when the clockers caught at the first time.

In the record books of the A. A. U., the 100 yard dash is the only flat distance race in which more than one record equalling performance is recognized.

Unless action is taken at the next meeting of the I. A. A. F. it may become necessary to issue a special supplement to the record books, containing nothing but the names of those who have run 100 yards in 9 2-5 seconds.

Minneapolis, May 3.—(UP)—Police today continued their investigation into the death of Charles W. Enz, who was shot twice below the heart and fatally wounded here Thursday. James Brew, who lived in the same building and with whom Enz was said to have been unfriendly, was held for questioning.

FARM YOUTH FACES TRIAL FOR MURDER

Stillwater, April 3.—(UP)—Washington county authorities indicated here today that unless Roy Mattson, 22, Scandia, Minn., farm youth, was adjudged insane before May 13 when the grand jury convenes, he would be brought to trial charged with the murder of his mother, Mrs. Hulda Mattson, 49, and his brother, Clarence, 23. Mrs. Mattson and Clarence were shot to death on April 26 during a family argument.

Torch Victim Known

Mrs. Dorothy Helmsman Peacock, aged 20, of White Plains, N. Y., has been identified by her mother as the victim of the fiend husband who strangled her and burned the body in a lonely spot near Scarsdale, N. Y. She had been estranged from her husband, Earl Peacock, below.

VARIED MUSICAL PROGRAM PLEASES

Many Attend Last Program of School Year of Lincoln Parent Teachers

DR. E. L. STRADER SPEAKS

Mrs. A. A. Steinfeldt Elected First Vice President for Ensuing Year

A large assemblage heard the last program of the school year presented by the Lincoln P. T. A. at the school Wednesday evening. A splendid varied musical program arranged by Miss Cora Rickard helped to make it one of the outstanding programs of the year. Every number given was a specialty in itself and enjoyed to the fullest by everyone present.

Dr. E. L. Strader of Deerwood gave an instructive talk on Tuberculosis. He stated the symptoms of the disease plainly and pleaded for caution and immediate care of it.

Miss Alta Franklin's reading added a delightful touch of humor to the evening's entertainment.

At the business meeting it was voted to send to the County Child Welfare Board a check for $18, the last half of the Association's gift towards welfare work in the county.

Mrs. A. A. Steinfeldt was unanimously elected first vice president of the association for the ensuing year. Mrs. Steinfeldt has distinguished herself as an ardent worker for the school in the past two years.

The joint meeting of all P. T. A.'s in the city will be held May 17 at the Elks Temple. Hon. G. A. Youngquist, attorney general of the state, will be the speaker of the evening.

The track meet of the public schools will be held during an afternoon next week at Gregory Park, the date to depend on the weather. All interested in athletics are urged to attend, parents especially.

Lunch was served by the teachers of the school. These proficient teachers demonstrated their abilities also as hostesses.

The program included a piano solo by Miss Lorraine Morrison, songs by a three part chorus of Seventh grade pupils, a musical reading by Miss Marjorie Forsberg, songs by a two part chorus of Sixth and Seventh grade pupils, selections by an instrumental quartet from the Brainerd high school orchestra, songs by Seventh and Eighth grade pupils, violin solos by Victor Bourgeois and selections by a high school girls' octet.

Drama, Vaudeville and Minstrel Acts Mixed to Make Evening Popular

BY B. H. S. STUDENTS

Everything Including Crashing Fenders Against Cowcatcher to be Seen

(Contributed)

Tonight the Brainerdian benefit takes place at the U. C. T. hall at 8:15 o'clock. The program is one provocative of laughter. Whatever your sense of humor, it will be tickled by some acts in the medley, for there is infinite variety. Drama, vaudeville, minstrel acts, are there for your amusement.

Good natured Grandma sits in amused silence as she sees her grandchildren disobeying parental orders and thinks of what will happen when they get a dose of their own medicine, which they do.

In the "vodvil" act you will have everything from the horror of crashing fenders against the cowcatcher of the train to the days three hundred years ago when ghosts walked the earth and told tales of crimes committed. In between are judges and lawyers and plaintive maidens and gallant officers of the law in farthest Canada.

If you like synecopation, you have only to hear the minstrel show. An orchestra of skill and excellence, supported by a cast with melodious voices, will give you song and jest and laughter. Mose and Sambo and Rastus are there in all their glory, and tattle and sing and crack jokes in proper style.

All this you get for 25 cents if you are a student, and for 35 cents if you are older. Come one, come all.

BANK PURCHASE DEAL COMPLETED

Farmers State Buys First National in Pequot Transaction; Capital Stock Increased

On Wednesday, May 1 most of the assets of the First National bank of Pequot were acquired by purchase by the Farmers State bank of Pequot, and the entire deposit liability of the former bank which now retires from business, was assumed by the Farmers State bank.

The capital stock of the enlarged institution has been increased to $15,000 in addition to which there is a surplus fund of $5,000 and a substantial undivided profits account.

As a result of the negotiation, the deposits of the purchasing bank have been enlarged by about $60,000 and the combined total deposits are now in excess of $285,000. This gives Pequot a banking institution of a size exceeded in Crow Wing county only by the banks of the larger cities, Brainerd, Crosby, and Ironton and provides an institution splendidly equipped to foster the development of the Pequot community.

Attorney Per M. Larson of Brainerd conducted the legal phase of the transaction.

Arrangements have been made for the decorating of the First National bank building, and when that is done, in about two or three weeks, the Farmers State bank will move to its new quarters. The building occupied at the present will be for rent or sale.

The management as well as the name of the Farmers State bank will remain unchanged. J. C. Nelson is president; L. Mathison, vice president; A. C. Larson, cashier; and Miss Gladys Aas, assistant cashier. The directors in addition to the first two named officers are L. H. Dudgeon, J. R. Slocum and J. D. Leslie.

The present stockholders in the bank are J. C. Nelson, president; G. D. LaBar, president of the First National bank of Brainerd; F. A. Farrar, vice president of the First National bank, Brainerd; J. D. Leslie, barber; Ludvig Mathison, lumbering; L. H. Dudgeon, stock buyer; G. R. Slocum, Alfred Lawrence, A. J. Nelson, farmers; Martha Whitney, Sophie Brunen.

THE NEW PONTIAC BIG 6

PRODUCT OF GENERAL MOTORS

The 4-door Sedan, $845 • Body by Fisher Sport Equipment Extra

Some people make a fundamental mistake when they go to buy a car. They receive a demonstration. They compare the performance, the style and the luxury of the new car with the two or three-year-old car they are about to trade in. And, naturally, the new car seems just about perfect. So they sign the order without looking further. Maybe they make a good purchase, maybe not. The point is that they don't know what they might have found if they had only looked around.

To help you avoid this mistake we have arranged a special demonstration of the New Pontiac Big Six. Be sure to come in for this demonstration before you buy any low-priced car. See the others, by all means. But see the New Pontiac Big Six, if only for the sake of comparison.

Progressive people are using the New Pontiac Big Six as the basis for their comparison and most of them come back to buy it. For it is the one car that enables them to step up in motor car quality without leaving the low-priced field.

Prices $745 to $895, f. o. b. Pontiac, Mich., plus delivery charges. Bumpers, spring covers and Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers regular equipment at slight extra cost. General Motors Time Payment Plan available at minimum rate.

Consider the delivered price as well as the list price when comparing automobile values. . . . Oakland-Pontiac delivered prices include only reasonable charges for delivery and financing.

If "Skinny," Gain Weight Quick Way

New YEAST and IRON adds pounds in few weeks. Your own druggist guarantees results—or pay nothing. You don't want to be underweight, nervous and always tired—an object of pity to your friends. Start Ironized Yeast now and put pounds of good flesh on those bony arms, hollow cheeks and scraggy limbs. See ugly lines give way to graceful curves. Feel a new vitality and strength you haven't had for years. Only when Yeast is Ironized is it more effective—for Iron is needed to bring out the weight-building values of Yeast.

Ironized Yeast brings pounds of weight in astonishingly quick time. Letters say: "10 pounds gained in 3 weeks," "one full treatment added 7 pounds," "11 pounds and better health." The blood is toned up too, because the iron adds strength and richness to the blood, clearing up the complexion and increasing your vitality. Ironized Yeast comes only in pleasant-tasting tablets. Safe for everybody. Does not upset stomach nor cause gas or bloating.

Ask the druggist today for a full course treatment. It will prove that you can gain many pounds or your money will be refunded.
